

Mrs. Ruth Vaile Townes, Sisters Are Confident, Died a Tragic Death in Washington

HOME OF THE TOWNES FAMILY IN THE WASHINGTON FORESTS.

THE sisters in this city of Mrs. Ruth Vaile Townes, who is supposed to have met such a terrible fate in the lonely woods of Washington, are still almost convinced that the seven destitute orphans found in that lonely wood are the children of their sister, notwithstanding a report from Seattle stating that the name of the family was Johnson. Every circumstance of the case points so strongly to the truth of the first report that they, although they would like to think otherwise, cannot bring themselves to believe but that the suffering children are their relatives.

In regard to the discrepancy in the names they have two theories, either one of which might easily explain that uncertainty. The sisters here would gladly believe that they are mistaken in their fears, but in view of all the information they have they say they cannot but feel confident that their fears are based upon facts. The fact that for four years they have not been able to get any trace of their sister or her family, and that the very description of the place where the children were found tallies exactly with a picture of their sister's home in those woods, is to them proof only too convincing.

Mrs. Moore, who lives on Seventh West street, when seen yesterday, said that when the message was first received from Seattle saying that the names of the children was Johnson she felt relieved, thinking that it was not her sister's family, but that after thinking over the circumstances again she could not but believe that the children were her relatives.

"The article containing the account of the finding of the children," said she, "says that the house was upon an acre and a half of cleared ground, and I know that my sister's house was in exactly that part of the country and upon an acre and a half of cleared ground."

Mrs. Moore then produced the picture which is shown above, and which was taken a little over four years ago. The picture shows Mrs. Townes and six of her children standing in front of the little shack that they built upon the cleared ground. The fallen timber and the dense woods around it can be plainly seen.

"These circumstances alone," said Mrs. Moore, "make it impossible for me to see how it could be any other family."

The article giving an account of the finding of the children says that the mother before her death told the children to stick together as long as they could, and Mrs. Moore thinks it possible that she told them to give their names as Johnson to keep their relatives from learning what their misery and sufferings were.

"My sister was always a proud woman," said Mrs. Moore, "and when she didn't have enough for a meal she would never let any one know it. I fear that she told the children to give another name to keep us from learning about her condition."

Another explanation of how the names of the children could be Johnson and that still be Mrs. Townes' children, is that after her husband was lost in the ship on his way to Nome, Mrs. Townes might have married again. If this is the case, what has become of Johnson is a mystery.

If this family should prove not to be the family of Mrs. Townes, the fact still remains that Mrs. Townes and her children are missing, and have not been heard of for four years.

"The last time we heard from our sister," said Mrs. Moore, "was through a letter received four years ago from her from Clallam county. Then she said that she had decided not to go to Alaska with her husband, as she had thought of doing, but that she was going to remain upon the property taken up by her husband in the woods. Shortly after that her husband and the oldest boy took ship for Nome, and so far as is known went down on one of the vessels that sank off the Alaskan coast."

"Since that time we have been unable to hear anything from our sister or her family. We have written constantly in an effort to find her but of our father's and mother's death, but not a word has been received in reply. I cannot see how the children can be any other than those of my sister."

The sheriff has received no reply from Clallam county yet.

DR. LORENZ IS TO HOLD CLINIC

Famous Surgeon Will Operate on at Least One Case.

WILL ARRIVE HERE TODAY
TO BE ENTERTAINED BY PHYSICIANS OF SALT LAKE.

DR. ADOLPH LORENZ, the celebrated Vienna surgeon, will arrive in Salt Lake at 9 o'clock this morning and will hold a clinic at the city hospital this afternoon. It is certain that he will perform at least one operation, and possible that he will perform three. The persons who will be operated upon have not been definitely selected yet, but it is likely that the first operation will be upon a child from an outside town of the state.

The information that Dr. Lorenz would be here this morning over the Rio Grande came yesterday afternoon in a telegram to Dr. S. C. Baldwin, who will take charge of the entertainment of the surgeon while he is in the city. Dr. Baldwin had intended to leave Wednesday night to meet Dr. Lorenz on the way here, but finding that the train would pass in the middle of the night, he decided to abandon the trip and meet the doctor when he arrived here.

According to present arrangements Dr. Baldwin and a committee of local physicians will meet Dr. Lorenz at the train this morning and escort him to the Knutsford hotel, where he will be quartered. The arrangements will be made for the clinic in the afternoon. The time for the operation has not yet been determined and will not be set until after the arrival of the doctor, but it will probably be between 2 and 4 o'clock. The operation will be done at the Holy Cross hospital, where everything is in readiness for it.

He Will Operate.

In the telegram which Dr. Baldwin received, Dr. Lorenz states that he will operate as desired by the physicians here, and it is thought possible that at least three operations will be done. It is possible, though, that the doctor can only be prevailed upon to perform one. If this is the case, the child to be operated upon will undoubtedly be one that is expected to arrive here this morning from an outside town. The name of the child is withheld by the physicians until today, for the sake of the parents, who do not desire it known until the operation has been performed.

This case is one of a double congenital dislocation of the hip and is one of the rarest cases in the country. It is stated. For a long time past the child has been under the treatment of a physician of this city, but nothing has given it any relief, and if this operation is performed, as is expected, today, it will be watched with no little interest by the physicians of the state, many of whom, it is said, are coming in to meet the celebrated surgeon and be present at his clinic.

May Be Three Cases.

Two other cases that have been under the treatment of local doctors will be presented to the surgeon, and if possible he will be induced to operate upon them also. The names of these cases are also withheld until it is determined whether or not they will be operated upon.

The operation or operations by Dr. Lorenz will be witnessed by a large number of the members of the County Medical society and doubtless there will be many parents of afflicted children there with petitions for their children to be operated upon. Everywhere the doctor has been he has had many times more cases presented to him than he could possibly attend to and his time here will only permit of two or three operations.

In the evening the members of the County Medical association will entertain Dr. Lorenz at dinner at the Commercial club. After dinner a reception will be given the doctor at the same place. The members of the County Medical association and the members of the Commercial club will be invited to attend.

Dr. Lorenz will leave here Saturday morning on his way to San Francisco, where he has a case that he will operate upon.

Dr. Lorenz at Pueblo.

Pueblo, Colo., Oct. 30.—About sixty physicians watched with interest this morning two operations for congenital dislocation of the hip performed by Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the distinguished surgeon from Vienna. A child of Henry Reynolds and a little daughter of Otto Zolsman, a baker, were the subjects, and the doctor was satisfied that both cases would be successful. He held a clinic at the Colorado Fuel & Iron company's new hospital. Dr. Lorenz and his assistant, Dr. Mueller, left for Salt Lake City, San Francisco and Los Angeles this afternoon.
